Total Expense	0.40%
Transaction Costs	0.00%
Total Investment Charge	0.40%
1 Year Total Expense	0.36%

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Market overview

In Q4 2024, global markets were shaped by shifting economic factors, with U.S. equities driven by AI growth, particularly the contribution of the Magnificent 7 stocks, pushing the S&P 500 up 2%. However, MSCI ACWI fell 0.16%, and MSCI Emerging Markets dropped 8.1% over the quarter. Bond markets were pressured by persistent inflation, while the U.S. dollar strengthened. The U.S. presidential election victory by Donald Trump introduced new risks and uncertainties, particularly with his stance on trade and tariffs, which may influence market volatility and international relations.

Locally, the market was similarly impacted by global trends, with local equities falling. In the quarter, domestic equity markets underperformed, with the Top 40 Index returning -3.43%, the All-Share -2.83% and the Capped SWIX -2.14%. The rand weakened 4.2%, while sectors such as Telecoms (+8.7%) and Personal Goods (+11.5%) showed growth. Despite Q4 weakness, South African equities delivered a solid 13.4% return for 2024, outperforming many emerging markets. Bond yields rose in December following a global trend which caused prices to fall. This upward movement in yields resulted in a capital loss that outweighed the accrued income from the bonds. Despite this monthly dip, the All-Bond Index (ALBI) performed well over the year, posting a notable 17.2% annual gain, marking its best performance since 2003. The economy contracted 0.3% in Q3 2024, largely due to a drop in agriculture. There was no loadshedding over the quarter although water delivery remains an issue in certain provinces and municipalities presenting an obstacle to corporate investment in certain areas. Corporate earnings, particularly in banking, were stable. Geopolitical factors like trade uncertainties, including South Africa's inclusion in the African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA), also weighed on sentiment, alongside domestic challenges.

Looking ahead

Looking ahead to 2025, the global economic landscape presents mixed opportunities and challenges. The U.S. economy is expected to grow steadily at around 2%, supported by strong consumer spending and technological advancements. Uncertainty remains around the pace of potential interest rates cuts in the US, and we continue to view the most probable scenario as one of a series of 25bps cuts in successive FOMC meetings, while Europe faces slower growth due to weak productivity and lingering energy concerns. China's recovery hinges on decisive fiscal actions to address structural property market challenges and bolster domestic demand. Global equity markets remain optimistic, particularly in the U.S., driven by robust corporate earnings and AI investments, while fixed income offers improved returns with higher starting yields. However, risks such as geopolitical uncertainties, tighter global monetary conditions, and China's economic slowdown require careful navigation, with diversification remaining a critical strategy.

South Africa's outlook for 2025 is brighter, buoyed by political stability, ongoing structural reforms, and improving electricity reliability. The formation of a Government of National Unity (GNU) has boosted investor confidence, while reforms in Eskom and Transnet are set to alleviate key economic bottlenecks. In 2025, the debate over South Africa's inclusion in AGOA is expected to persist, especially with U.S. lawmakers urging President Trump to reassess participation. This ongoing diplomatic issue has been amplified by the Russia-Ukraine war, with trade policy and market access continuing to influence bilateral relations. GDP growth is forecast to reach 1.7%, up from 1.1% in 2024, alongside a potential boom in local equities driven by improved corporate earnings and increased foreign investment. Initiatives such as the two-pot savings system are expected to boost consumption and economic activity, though sustained growth will depend on addressing inefficiencies in state-owned enterprises and municipalities. Investors should remain vigilant of external risks, balancing optimism in local opportunities with the broader global complexities.
